2023-2024 Annual Stakeholder Report

PLC Results Cycle

TEACHER COLLABORATION

Years ago, you would have found that the majority of teachers worked in isolation. Today, teams of teachers will tell you that it is just plain crazy to try and teach by yourself. Research shows that teacher teams have an increased capacity to improve student outcomes when they work together and receive job-embedded professional development (Hattie, J. (2009). Visible Learning- A Synthesis of Over 800 Meta-Analyses Relating to Achievement. New York, New York: Routledge.) At Fox Hollow, we focus on teacher collaboration and timely professional development.

Every morning, and during staggered grade level teacher collaboration meetings on Tuesday, teachers work together to meet the needs of students. During their meetings, teachers analyze student data and design individualized interventions and extensions, so that each student has their needs met where they are and so that every student can make weekly progress. Teachers are guided in their work by the PLC Results Cycle, see QR code. It is an invaluable tool that helps teachers determine next steps with student instruction.

Just like our students, teachers have individual needs for growth in the teaching profession. Of course, they learn from each other in their weekly meetings, but they also can meet with in-house instructional coaches who are trained in the latest research-based strategies to support teachers in making the biggest impact with student learning. Fox Hollow's two instructional coaches are Lora Cunico and Teneille Ringer, who meet with teams on Tuesdays in collaboration. Because of the work of our instructional coaches, we are seeing teacher practice improve and student growth continue to increase at our school.

SCHOOL COMMUNITY COUNCIL

The Utah state legislature created the school community council to help bring local control to school governance. The school community council consists of parents, faculty and administrators who meet every other month. The council is charged with identifying the critical academic needs of the school and creating a school improvement plan. The council is also charged with being involved with the professional development of the faculty and with the expenditures of the allocated Trust Land monies provided by the state. Together, the council works for the success of every child at Fox Hollow Elementary.

We encourage parents to come and be a part of the school community council. If you have any questions or concerns that you would like to share, please contact our current council chair, Hayley Dye. Calendar dates for SCC meetings can be found on the school's website.

The 2023-2024 Trust Land budget is $102,980.00. After much discussion, as a school community council team, the funds were designated to provide teacher aide support in the classrooms, technology improvement, teacher professional development and a district supported literacy program. For complete clarity on purchases with Trustlands funds, please refer to the school website. We look forward to making this another terrific year for our students by using the funds to meet their needs.
